

The CLOSER

"Seal the Deal with the Push of a Button"

It happens all too often. One of your sales staff is just about to close the deal but there seems to be one bump or one last reservation keeping your customer from making that final decision. That's when it's time to bring in "The Closer". The Butler from LRS enables that transition seamlessly. You can have a manager, supervisor or sales specialist wear a pager and be paged with the simple touch of a button and never have to leave your seat. Your sales team will no longer worry about tracking down the needed personnel to help close the deal.

The Butler is a four button, battery operated transmitter that can be mounted on a wall, underneath a desk or on any other flat surface. It may be programmed to send a variety of messages depending on the need. For example, one button pages the sales supervisor, another button pages the finance manager, etc. With multiple Butlers, personnel can be paged to more than one office or room in the dealership.
